Our commitment

Preventing modern slavery practices is a complex issue with a global impact, and eliminating the potential for modern slavery practices in our operations and supply chain is key to our commitment.

At Twine, respecting human rights is inherent in our business operations and is embedded in our values, reflecting and shaping our behaviours and organisational culture. We seek to treat everyone fairly and consistently, creating a place and business environment that is safe, ethical, open, transparent and trusted.

Aligning with our core values and beliefs, any action taken to date or planned in the future will enhance our ability to address the risk of modern slavery in our operations and supply chain.

Twine is committed to:

- Ensure the risk of modern slavery practices within Twine's business operations is understood and addressed in accordance with internationally recognised principles and the Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth)
- Eliminate the potential for modern slavery practices in our operations and supply chain
- Utilise the due diligence that has been conducted to date, to create an action plan and set out next steps for Twine to achieve its goals to address the risk of modern slavery in our operations and supply chain
- Ensure transparency with our clients, subcontractors, suppliers and stakeholders regarding the progress to date, along with our commitment and intent
- Develop a plan to measure the effectiveness of the approach taken to address the risks associated with modern slavery.

The Modern Slavery Act 2018 (Cth) requires entities based, or operating, in Australia, which have an annual consolidated revenue of more than $100 million, to report annually on the risks of modern slavery in their operations and supply chains, and actions to address those risks.

Twine is not required to report to the Australian Border Force for publication on an online public register as we do not have an annual consolidated revenue of more than $100 million. We will however continue to internally monitor and address this matter within our business operations, and refine and further improve our approach and assessment to identify and respond to any risks of modern slavery practices within our organisation.
